

Don't Wait

Dan Evans, January 1982

It could be too late if you hesitate, to decide to surrender it all.

If you come to the end without Christ as your friend, you'll regret not answering His call.

If you feel there's no hope; you're at the end of your rope, look to God, He already knows.

The time soon may come when your days here are done and Jesus will beckon you home.

Death brings no chance for second thoughts, nor time to change your mind.

Think carefully now, make the wise choice, you're running out of time.

Is today the day you'll discover who's voice you have heard so long?

Is it God; is He trying to tell you, it's with Him you eternally belong?
